Access:

Access to primary mule deer hunting areas is generally good. Hunters will encounter access restrictions at Smith Creek in the Desatoya Range, however alternate public access is available around those private lands.

Recommended Hunting Areas:

The highest density mule deer areas during the deer season occur in the Clan Alpine Range, and the upper elevations of the Desatoya Range and parts of the New Pass Range and Stillwater Mountain Ranges.

Biologist Comments:

Horses can be used to a hunter's advantage on all the mountain ranges. Hunter success is usually better during the latter part of the regular deer season.
